

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS: TEACHING FELLOWS

APPLY TODAY TO THE REDESIGNED TEACHING FELLOWS PROGRAM!

The Teaching Innovation Fellows Program allows faculty to deeply explore strategies to improve their teaching practice, student learning, or faculty culture at Park University. Applicants are encouraged to select a topic of interest in one of the three categories below:

- Teaching: radical innovation, pedagogical reimagining, or the future of learning and working
- Learning: student success, student retention, or improved student learning outcomes
- Culture: fostering faculty culture for women, underrepresented groups, or building an engaged faculty learning culture

Selected Fellows will participate in an external certification that includes engagement with new resources, activities, and a network of faculty to learn about innovative practices and build an SoTL project to present or publish. They will explore their chosen topic in their own practice and facilitate a Special Interest Group (SIG) in the Park faculty community.

Three Teaching Fellows will be selected each spring to serve during the following academic year. All interested faculty (full-time, adjunct, distance, etc.) are invited to apply.

Click the button below to apply, or visit FCI's Apply to be a Teaching Innovation Fellow Program website to learn more (i.e., reasons to apply, program overview, and evaluation criteria for applications). All applications are due by March 10th, 2023!

Apply to be a Teaching Innovation Fellow HERE

Teaching Innovation Fellows Information

©2023 Park University Faculty Center for Innovation. All rights reserved.
8700 NW River Park Drive, Parkville, MO 64152
(816) 584-6770 -- innovatepark.org

You receive this email because you are a Park University instructor or administrator.